

Difficult conversations with patients in end of life care

½ day Tele-Education Session

Aim of the training: To increase confidence and competence whilst communicating with patients approaching the end of life and their carers.

Workshop information: This is an opportunity to explore some key communication skills around having conversations with patients about care at the end of life: e.g. preferred priorities of care. Also to discuss why, when and how to have them, how to manage different situations / reactions and to explore skills you can take back into practice through scenario based learning.

Who should attend? Registered Nurses (Band 5), Allied Health Care Professionals (Band4/5).

Cost: £25 per delegate.

Facilitators: Communication facilitators from St Gemma's Hospice
